DETAILED ACTION

- 1 This action is responsive to the amendment filed on August 22, 2005.
- 2 The cancellation of claim 3 is acknowledged. Pending claims are 1-2 and 4-20.
- 3 The obviousness-type double patenting rejection is maintained for the reasons set forth in the previous office action mailed on August 5, 2005.

New ground of rejection

Claim Objections

- 4 Claim 20 objected to because of the following informalities:

Claim 20 is a kit claim and therefore, the word “method” should be replaced by the word “kit” to make the claim in a proper dependency form. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 5 The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-2 and 4-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sarojini et al. (US 2003/0154562 A1) in view of Dias (US 6,540,791 B1).

Sarojini et al (US' 562 A1) teaches a method for coloring hair comprising applying to the hair a mixture of oxidative dye precursors such as para-phenylenediamine followed by contacting the hair with a mixture of oxidizing agents as claimed in claims 1 and 2 (see page 10, claim 1 and page 5, paragraph, 0096), the method wherein the primary intermediates are presented in the amounts of 0.001 to 5% which overlapped with the claimed range as claimed in claim 4 (see page 2, paragraph, 0041) and wherein the oxidation dye contains a nascent oxidizing compound as claimed in claim 5 (see page 4, paragraph, 0089), the method wherein the oxidizing mixture comprises hydrogen peroxide as claimed in claim 11 (see page 5, paragraph, 0096) and wherein the developer mixture also comprises an alkaline agent as claimed in claim 12 (see page 5, paragraph, 0092). Sarojini et al. (US' 562 A1) also teaches kit comprises the dyeing ingredients as described above and which are similar to those kits as claimed in claims 13-20 (see paragraph, 11, claim 17).

The instant claims differ from the reference by reciting a step of applying to the hair a means for aligning the hair and distributing the dye precursor mixture over the hair and wherein the dye precursor mixture produces specific color change.

Dias (US' 791 B1) in analogous art of hair dyeing formulation, teaches a method for dyeing hair comprising applying to the hair a distribution means such as comb and brush (see col. 49, lines 25-27)

Therefore, in view of teaching of the secondary reference, one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made would be motivated to apply to the hair the aligning and distributing means such as brushes or combs with a reasonable expectation of success because Dias (US' 791) clearly teaches that the composition may be applied directly to the hair or via some vehicle such as brushes, combs or applicators (see col. 49, lines 25-27), and, thus, a person of the ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to apply such a vehicle as taught by Dias (US' 791 B1) in the method described by Sarojini et al. (US' 562 A1) and would expect such a method to have similar properties to those claimed, absent unexpected results.

With respect to the limitation of the color change and condition for selecting the pH, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to be motivated to utilize a composition for dyeing hair having dyeing intermediate compounds with anionic forms that produce color changes because Sarojini et al. (US' 562 A1) teaches dyeing intermediates similar to those claimed (see page 4, paragraph, 0084), and thus a person of the ordinary skill in the art would expect such a composition to have similar properties and obtained change of color similar to those claimed, absent unexpected results.

Response to Applicant's Arguments

6 Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-2, 4, 7-9, 11 and 14-19 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
